Ralph Garvin Steinhauer

Three months older than the province of Alberta Ralph Steinhauer was born in Morley, Alberta in June, 1905. A Full Treaty Indian of the Cree Tribe, he is the grandson of Henry Bird Steinhauer, a famous missionary. In 1928 he married Isabel Davidson, then a school teacher at Vilna, Alberta. In 1929 they established a farm near Brosseau, on the Saddle Lake Reserve. The 1,800 acre farm with its 300 head of cattle and 700 acres of cultivated land remains an important part of their family heritage.

Recipient of the Medal of Service of the Order of Canada in 1967, he became an officer of the Order in 1972. His contributions to community service include 34 years as a councillor and three years as chief of the Saddle Lake Indian Band. He also helped to establish and remains active in the Indian Association of Alberta and was instrumental in the formation of the Saddle Lake Centennial Development Association, an extremely successful farming venture.

In 1963 he became the first North American Indian to run as a candidate in a federal election following his nomination as Liberal candidate for the Vegreville riding.

In 1974 he was appointed Alberta's ninth Lieutenant Governor.
